Nearly 70 years ago, a youth leader in Sweden, Ernst Killander spiced-up a cross country race through the woods with the addition of compasses, topographic maps and checkpoints. Called "orienteering", this sport was introduced into the U.S. after World War II by Bjorn Kjellstrom a Swedish champion who moved here and began selling his compass the "Silva" now widely used by outdoor enthusiasts. During the past three years orienteering has grown to over 70 clubs in the U.S. (submitted by Audrey)

More Words

Happiness is like potato salad—when you share it with others, it's a picnic. Just about the time you think you can make ends meet, somebody moves the ends. Be careful how you live—you may be the only bible some people read. A recipe that is not shared with others will soon be forgotten but when it's shared it will be enjoyed by future generations.
